FROM RELIANCE.

The flood did much damage in this community, but faces are looking natural again, since the people can realize that a higher power than mankind has control of affairs, and that all things are for the best, however mysterious they may seem.

Quite a number of people from our community were out of the county away visiting during the flood and now they are out of county waterbound.

Mr. W. H. Morgan is repairing and partially rebuilding his gin, which will add much to its worth and usefulness.

Our young people having felt for some time, the need of a Baptist Young Peoples Union, Sunday night, quite a number of earnest christian boys and girls met with a prayer in their hearts and after a short talk from the pastor which was full of encouragement. The organization resulted as follows: Prof. C. E. Bullock, president; C. C. Morgan, vice president; Miss Minnie Morgan, secretary; all of whom we believe will perform their duties with earnestness. The beginning subject "Have we the Spirit of God" was discussed and references to humility, courage, etc., were read and proved to be very helpful. Rev. J. L. Wilson of Georgetown made an interesting talk to the members of the Union. The second and fourth Sunday nights in each month was selected for the time of meeting.

Our musical society which met Saturday night, July 8th was almost a perfect success. Several quartettes, recitations and an essay concerning the science of music, by Miss Bullock were rendered, all of which deserved credit.

Mr. Whittington was re-elected president and Miss Lela Griffith was chosen Secretary for next quarter.

A FRIEND.

BENCHLEY NEWS.

News is very scarce in this community at present.

Everybody is grieving over what they lost during the late flood.

The Central suffered, it is reported worse than any other road in Texas most all of the damage being between Bryan and Hearne.

Campbell creek bridge three miles north of here was washed over 100 yards over in H. G. Dixon's field; a new bridge is completed over the creek now.

The first mail received here since June 29th came in Sunday evening from the south on a train consisting of an engine and baggage car; it will probably be a week before mail will be received from the north.

There was singing Sunday evening at Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Haltom's a good crowd being present.

Messrs Calvin Seale and Glaze are in Franklin this week attending court.

Rob Seale is visiting relatives at Baird this week.

Miss Bessie Seale after a week visit to friends and relatives at Bryan returned home Friday.

R. H. Seale and family returned from Baird Thursday. They came as far as Calvert by railroad from which place they embarked in a little "red canoe" in which they succeeded in getting in 3 miles of home where a carriage was waiting to convey them home.

Mrs. R. H. Seale and children returned from a visit to relatives at Bryan Friday.

We regret to say that the baby Mr. and Mrs. O. Wilburg is again ill.

H. F. Payne visited Bryan last Tuesday.

Oscar Wilburg of Houston, arrived in our city Monday.

Good luck to the Eagle. Sailor. renters, who d

Dr. White for Good Roads.

Dr. A. J. White, who was a visitor to the city yesterday, expressed great interest in the good roads movement which has been inaugurated in Brazos county and said he would do all he could to aid the important undertaking. Dr. White was appointed good roads chairman in the Macy precinct by Judge A. G. Board and says he will call a meeting and do all he can to organize a Good Roads Club there; also that he will circulate the proposed petition for a 15 cent special road and bridge tax election. We feel sure that Dr. White will make a success of the movement in his community, with the help of other public spirited citizens in that locality. He and Mr. McDonald relate that they had to come around by Wheelock yesterday to get here, a rain having put Cedar creek up Monday, when they tried to come and had to turn back, and that work on the roads and bridges in his part of the county is a crying necessity.

The Eagle hopes this matter of organizing good roads clubs will be taken up promptly in all parts of the county by those appointed for the purpose. The power for good that might result from the co-operation of such clubs would at once be incalculable, and in a very few years would give to Brazos county a first class system of roads and bridges which might easily be kept in perfect repair.

THOMPSON CREEK.

We are having some pretty fine weather since the flood. Crops are not damaged as bad as they were at first thought to be in this neighborhood. Most all the corn raised up enough to clear the ear of the ground.

Most all the farmers are plowing their cotton over again. Some are repairing their fences that were washed away during the flood.

Rev. S. R. McClung filled his regular appointment last Saturday and Sunday.

The protracted meeting was postponed until Saturday before the second Sunday in next month.

The singing class met last Saturday night. There was a good attendance and the singing was good. It will meet again next Saturday night, also Sunday evening at 3 o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend. There will be prayer meeting after singing.

Messrs. H. L. Bush and Jesse Henry left last Saturday to attend the normal at Carlton.

Mrs. Doulin visited Mrs. Mattie Royall last Sunday.

Missis Etta Glaze and Pearl Browning of Benchley, visited Miss Ethel Sherrod last Sunday.

Magnolia.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

This is what Farm and Ranch says about the change made by the Agricultural Department in potato nomenclature:

"The division of statistics of the Department of Agriculture has changed the name 'Irish potato' to 'White potato' and hereafter in statistical reports they will be so denominated. The reason given for the change is that the name Irish potato is a misnomer; therefore, to distinguish it from the sweet potato, the spud will go as 'White potato.' The new name, it strikes us, is also a misnomer, and utterly fails to distinguish it from the sweet potato. The 'Irish' or 'White' potato may be white or brown or pink or red or yellow, or any one of a large number of shades; so also may the sweet potato. There is no color presented in one that is not represented in the other. We fail to see any advantage to accrue from the new name, as neither brevity nor perspicuity is attained."

Card From Mayor Adams.

Realizing that many of our citizens have sustained severe losses from the recent flood, I have caused no subscription list or other request for donations for Brazos county flood sufferers to be made here, but those desiring to contribute anything will please deposit the same in either of the local banks, and whatever the amount, it will be gratefully received in behalf of the sufferers and carefully expended for their relief.

Respectfully,
C. A. Adams.

Sunken Graves at Waco.

Waco Telephone.
Visitors to the cemeteries yesterday found that the facts had not been overdrawn in the slightest, and that matters there had assumed a phase which has been heretofore unknown. Two or three thousand graves sank in Oakwood alone, while a large number did the same

It is exactly what they require—it not only gives them the important element (Cod Liver Oil) in a palatable and easily digested form, but also the hypophosphites, which are so valuable in nervous disorders that usually accompany anaemia. Our Egg Emulsion is palatable and easily digested and being emulsified with yolk of egg only, and flavored with Brandy it is an entire food and readily assimilated. Children can easily take it given at meals with sweet milk.

thing in First street and the other cemeteries. In a few instances the cave-ins were awful, extending over half way to the coffins, and some of them were so deep that one drew back instinctively, half expecting to see the caskets or the remains of them protruding from the earth.

Monuments were leaning from their bases in every direction, and in a few instances had toppled and fallen across the graves. Foot and headstones had fallen into the graves in many places, and one monument was noticed which was broken by the fall. It was a sad sight and one which Waco people may not be called upon to face again for a long while to come.

The work of repairing the damage was undertaken yesterday so far as propping some of the monuments was concerned, as a number appeared just ready to fall. Today has been a busy one in the cemeteries and a large force of men has been at work putting matters to rights. From all appearances it will take more than two hundred wagon loads of dirt or sand and gravel to fill up the sunken graves and this work has been in progress today.

FROM HARVEY.

We are having some pleasant weather now. Most of the farmers are about through plowing their cotton.

The heavy rain did some damage out here, but nothing like it did in the bottom.

H. O. Ferguson and T. Q. Dyess are teaching a singing school at this place.

Rev. H. T. Palmer and R. A. Holland are teaching a singing school at Edge.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Newcome, a fine boy last Saturday.

Rev. S. R. McClung filled his regular appointment at Thompson creek last Saturday and Sunday, but failed to hold a series of meetings on account of the overflow.

There was a prayer meeting organized here at his place last Sunday.

The Free Baptist meeting closed last Sunday morning after the baptism of five.

There was a great many from Bryan who visited Harvey, among them was Mr. Joe Wren, Miss Francis and Lizzie Wilcox, Mr. Bob Odom and Mr. Albert Parten, and Misses Maud Trant and Lula Hardy, and others. Sailor.

Workers Institute.

The next meeting of the (Bryan Baptist Associations,) Workers Institutes fifth Sunday meeting, will be held with Peach Creek church, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 28, 29 and 30. An interesting program has been prepared, and everything is in readiness to have one of the best meetings that was ever had.

Spinster's Costly Whim.

New York Herald: A dislike which can be accounted for on reasonable grounds by her friends has just been the means by which Marie Van Syckle of Newark deprived herself of at least $2,000 and permitted F. J. Wood of 194 Market street to acquire a parcel of valuable property at a corresponding saving of wealth.

Miss Van Syckle is a wealthy spinster. Among her holdings was the property at the southwest corner of Bank and Halsey streets, Newark. She decided to dispose of it, and immediately it became known that it was for sale bidding became lively.

Mr. Wood offered $40,000 for it, and this offer was raised $2,000 by A. L. Cross, so it is said. Every one supposed that Miss Van Syckle would accept the top figure, and then astonishment, therefore, when she transferred it to Wood was great.

She said that she knew she was losing money by so doing, but declared that she had taken a dislike to Mr. Cross and would not sell him the property under any circumstances.

Easy Way to Be Generous.

In the Baptist church of a New England village was an old man who had all the Christian graces save one, and that one was the grace of liberality. He would do anything in the world for the cause of religion but give up his money. At the close of the financial year of 1869 the church found itself $400 in debt. A church meeting was called, and it was voted to circulate a subscription paper on the spot, and endeavor to thus raise the sum needed. This was done, and the old gentleman did not put his name on the paper. The result was rather disheartening, $200 only having been pledged. Silence reigned for a moment, when one of the most generous men in the church moved that "we double our subscriptions." Instantly the old gentleman was on his feet, and with extraordinary fervor cried, "I second the motion." He evidently felt that he was thus doing his part in hastening a most desirable result.

CITY TAX NOTICE.

By virtue of the city of Bryan tax rolls for the year 1898 and an ordinance passed by the city council January 10th, 1896, directing the manner of collecting delinquent city tax on real estate, and all costs that have accrued or may hereafter accrue, I, H. G. Rhodes, City Tax Collector of Bryan City, will by virtue of the aforesaid ordinance, proceed to make out and present to the city council at their regular meeting in June, 1899, for the approval of said council all delinquent city taxpayers on the following named list and the following described property, giving amount of taxes due together with cost accrued which list when approved by council will be delivered to the city attorney, who will proceed to bring suit as the law directs.

Murdered in Church.

Dallas, Texas, July 11.—At 9:30 last night one of the most startling tragedies Dallas has ever known took place in the First Christian church, Pearl and Bryan street. In the midst of protracted meeting services, John T. Carlisle arose from his seat at the rear of the house and walked to where Professor William Lipscomb, principal of the Central High school, the leading educational institution of the public schools of the city, was seated, on the first seat in front of the altar, and shot him without a word of warning, the weapon used being a .38-caliber pistol. Professor Lipscomb sprang up from his seat, grappled with his assailant and toppled over into the aisle. The report spread that he was killed. He had swooned, however, and soon regained consciousness. The wound, however, was mortal. The bullet entered the left side just below the heart, passed downward through the stomach, coming out on the right side.

Carlisle was seized by persons near him and was prevented from firing another shot. He was taken to the county jail and locked up. He appeared to be almost helplessly drunk and could not or would not talk of the tragedy.

Professor Lipscomb was too badly hurt to be removed from the church. He was laid on the altar, his head resting in his wife's lap and his feet in a chair. He was reported dead at 10:45.

Killed in a Peculiar Way.

Waco, Texas, July 11.—R. M. Conley, deputy sheriff of Bosque county, was killed Sunday night on an excursion train on the Texas Central between Morgan and Walnut Springs. He was trying to arrest Ed Burrow of Hico, who had drawn a pistol on a passenger and had presented his own revolver as he demanded Burrow's surrender. Burrow grabbed the officer's pistol and, being a powerful man, turned the muzzle of the weapon to Conley's side. The pistol was discharged, the ball sawing through the officer's body. He died yesterday afternoon at his home in Waco.

Burrow is held for murder. He declares that Officer Conley shot himself. Conley maintained until the last that he had not cocked his pistol, but that it was fired by Burrow. The train on which the killing took place was crowded with Woodmen of the World and their friends who had attended the unveiling exercises in this city Sunday.

Alaskan Boundary Matter.

Washington, July 11.—Unless Senator Fairbanks while in Alaska succeeded in finding a satisfactory solution of the vexed boundary question and brings with him the material for the arrangement of a modus vivendi, the high joint commission will not meet in August. It is conjectured here that the senator, though himself a member of the commission, has during his Alaskan trip been unable to acquaint himself with the unsatisfactory state of the negotiations between Mr. Choate and Lord Salisbury respecting the arrangement of a modus vivendi. At any rate, it is stated here that there has been no change in the status of the case and no communication from Mr. Choate that would tend to encourage the hope that the joint high conference can reconvene in Quebec on August 2 to which date the adjournment was had at the last meeting.

Not Anxious to Enlist.

Dallas, Texas, July 11.—Not one enlistment was made at Dallas recruiting station yesterday under the new call for volunteers. Captain Cabell, the recruiting officer, has opened a sub-station at Fort Worth. Four enlistments were made at the Dallas station yesterday for the regular army and the men were started for the Philippines by way of San Francisco. During the war with Spain Dallas furnished approximately 1500 soldiers, volunteers and regulars, but the young men of this section are not nearly so anxious to fight the Filipinos as they were the Spaniards.

Britain and France.

St. Johns, N. F., July 11.—The colonial authorities are understood to have been informed that the report of the royal commission of inquiry into the French shore complications is withheld for the present by the British colonial office because it so far discredits the cause of the boy about land that its publication would do harm to the cause. Another Fashoda the had a fight with seph Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies from this and ever, "determined to capture the man with the abandoned the object of capturing him. He on the coast, died as a mulatto about 35 opens." id, with part of one ear gone peculiarly about his eyes. He was known in Gollad county and London, worked in this county.

Distress at Millican.

Millican, Texas, July 12.—There are 700 people in this community who are in a destitute circumstances from the overflow, and they can not receive some help there will be suffering among them, as they have lost everything they had. Most of them are renters, who depended on the land

CREST OF FLOOD.

IS NOW LOCATED IN BRAZORIA COUNTY AND THE Whole Country Is Inundated.—The Oyster Creek Plantations are Ruined.—Eight Thousand Negroes and Hundreds of Whites are Destitute.

Angleton, Texas, July 11.—The water has receded about an inch, but there are very few dry spots of land west of Austin bayou, which is fifteen miles from the Brazos. The water is from two to three feet deep all over the prairie and the valleys are from five to fifteen feet under water. Every plantation along Oyster creek, the richest agricultural district in Texas, has been ruined and stock has been swept away by thousands. About 8000 negroes living along Oyster creek and Bernard bottoms have lost everything, and hundreds of white families are in the same condition.

The first relief goods arrived Sunday night from Alvin, having been brought in boats from Flores bayou across the prairie, but the supply was inadequate for the needs of the day. The goods were loaded into boats here and sent into Oyster creek country, where the negroes are assembled in houses, packed like sardines in a box. A list prepared by the relief committee shows that there are about 800 negroes at Chenango Junction and on Oyster creek below that point to feed and care for.

At Chenango there are 300 or 400 more huddled together in box cars and old buildings. Vessels has ascended the river, carrying provisions and rescuing the people. The tug Annie rescued sixty people between Brazoria and Columbia, and left there at noon yesterday to meet 100 people who were known to be at different points. They will be taken to Brazoria and cared for.

The Terminal railroad track from Chenango Junction to Velasco is badly wrecked; much of the grade has been washed away, and the heavy steel rails bent, twisted and even carried away by the tremendous force of the flood. The railroad grades backed up the water two or three feet; when it gave way the water came through like the booming flood of Niagara rushing through the country with a two-foot head.

Comparatively few lives have been lost along Oyster creek, though many would have perished but for the relief crews sent out from Angleton. One negro woman, six children and two puppies were rescued through the roof of a cabin which was already afloat. Two negro men who had taken refuge on the limb of a tree were rescued just in the nick of time; the limb had broken and they were in fifteen feet of water and yelling for dear life, which attracted the attention of Colonel J. L. Bates' crew, which came to their relief.

W. M. Weyant, Jr., of Amsterdam, with his son, a splendid boat and a noble crew was one of the first to arrive from the outside. He came over the prairie and immediately went into the Oyster creek country and rescued scores of negroes, whom he took to a gin house; they were all destitute and hungry; he returned to Angleton and left yesterday morning with a load of supplies for them. He reported 127 of them in one gin house.

All flour, bacon and meal in Angleton was exhausted Sunday, hence aid can not be furnished from this point except as it arrives from the outside. Six boats left here yesterday morning for Flores bayou to meet supplies sent by team from Alvin, but have not yet returned. It is a tedious trip across the prairie, as the water is shallow in places, with swift currents to pull against. They will arrive this morning and the supplies immediately be sent out by fresh crews.

Dallas, Fort Worth and Gulf.

Dallas, Texas, July 11.—W. C. Connor, president of the Dallas, Fort Worth and Gulf Railway company, returned from New York City yesterday. He reports that he has succeeded in procuring an abundance of capital to construct the road and that the engineering was put in the field today or would be. He will locate the line by partial defense of Fort Worth. The spoken Monday an average of chairman said that if the Texas would doubtless do it, cross the line Prairie

Prices Have Been

Havana, July 12.—The president bans into Bayamo, province of New go de Cuba, in anticipation of the for the surrender of their arms, times and the merchants of that place have attempted to profit beyond reason by the situation. They raised prices beyond reason, upon which point the mayor argued with them. The merchants, however, refused to modify their prices, and the mayor thereupon issued an order regulating prices and providing a heavy fine for violation of the ordinance. Food is now cheap.

There are about 6000 men in and

JASPER BRIGGS' Wooing.

BY THOMAS P. MONTFORT.

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY THOMAS P. MONTFORT.

Jasper Briggs was a bachelor. He was also one of the most diffident men you ever saw, and especially so in the presence of women. It was to this same diffidence that Jasper's bachelorhood could be ascribed. Up to the age of 40 years he had never gone courting. He had never even so much as kept company with one of the opposite sex. He shunned the society of women whenever it was possible—not that he disliked them, but that he feared them. Yet in his younger days Jasper had fallen deeply in love. Rose Jackson, a beautiful neighbor girl, was the object of his adoration, and he did adore her. His love was silent; but, like still water, it was deep. He might have won Rose if he had wooed her, but he let the chance slip. While he stood off and admired her at a distance George Clark set siege to her heart and in time gained her affections. She became Clark's wife.

For 15 years Jasper and the Clarks lived neighbors, and never did neighbors get along better. Jasper and Clark were the closest of friends. If Jasper still loved Rose, he kept the fact well disguised, for no one suspected it. At the end of 15 years of married life Clark died. Rose was quite alone in the world, with no one to look after her business affairs. Jasper understood the situation and proposed to take charge of her farm and manage it for her. She was very glad to have him do so, for she trusted him implicitly. Of course this arrangement threw Jasper and Rose together a great deal. Jasper was at Rose's house often, and frequently she found it necessary to consult him on matters of business. They got along together in a most splendid manner, agreed well on everything and were the best of friends. The neighbors predicted that Jasper and the widow would marry when she had got over her grief for Clark. It seemed the most natural thing in the world that they should marry. Yet two years passed, and if Jasper

For a few days the widow kept up this game. Then, seeing that nothing was likely to come of it, she reversed her conduct. She became testy and cross with Jasper. She avoided him, had but little to say to him and never smiled on him. For the first time since she became a widow she found fault with his method of doing things. She became heartlessly cruel in her criticisms of his ideas and actions.

Poor Jasper was astonished. He did not know enough of woman's nature to understand her motive. It never once occurred to him that she was trying to tease and fret him into declaring his love. He believed her in earnest, and with one drop he went from heaven to the opposite extreme.

"I have sinned away my day of grace," he thought. "She did love me, but I waited too long, and now she hates me. I have lost her again."

One day an old widower called on Rose. He remained two or three hours, and though he did not say just as much, he gave her to understand that the object of his visit was matrimony. Rose's first impulse was to discourage him right in the beginning, but on second thought she decided not to do so. It occurred to her that he might be made to answer a good purpose.

Philander Johnson, the widower aforesaid, possessed none of Jasper Briggs' diffidence. He could speak his thoughts without any trouble. At his second visit to Rose he made his purpose quite explicit. At his third visit he asked her to marry him. She was startled and surprised, of course, and immediately began to fence with the question.

"I don't know what answer to give you," she said. "You must let me have time to think over the matter. In three days you shall have an answer."

Johnson rose to go. "I suppose you know what I have to offer you, Mrs. Clark? I am not altogether poor. I own

"I know what one thinks."
"You do? What does he think, Jasper?"

"He loves you."
"Oh, dear!" and she hid her blushing face in her hands, but peeped at Jasper with one very bright eye.

"Are you really in earnest, Jasper?"
"Yes, I am."

She waited a moment, then with perfect innocence asked:
"Who is the man who has been so foolish as to love me?"

"Me," Jasper answered boldly.

She affected breathless surprise and looked at him incredulously, as though she could not believe that he was really in earnest.

"Oh, Jasper!" she cried at last, a little above a whisper. "Are you really and truly in earnest?"

"I am," he answered.

She waited a long time for him to lead on and declare himself more fully, but she waited in vain. He had shut up, and he could not get started again.

She saw that the matter was likely to stop there unless she took the initiative and pushed along. "Jasper," she said seriously, "I can scarcely believe that you mean what you say."

"I do, though," he said.

"You like me very well as a friend, I know, but I think you don't quite—that is, you—"

"I love you."

"Not like a man loves a woman he wants to marry, though."

"Yes, I do, too."

"No, you don't, Jasper, because if you did you'd want to marry me. Oh, dear! What am I saying?" And she looked around wonderfully startled.

"I do want to marry you," he replied in a matter of fact way.

She laughed as though she did not for an instant believe him serious.

"Oh, Jasper," she cried, "you should not jest like that! It is wrong."

"Me jest!" he exclaimed.

"Yes; you are jesting, aren't you?"

"Never."

"And you really want to marry me, Jasper?"

"I do, sure."

She drew a long, heavenly sigh and laid her hand in his.

"Well I cannot find the heart to say 'No' to you, Jasper," she said, "after all you've done for me. You have been my best friend, and I owe you a debt of gratitude."

Jasper was unable to express himself in fitting language, but he knew how to open his arms and draw her to his bosom and hold her in a close embrace while he gave her one long, lingering kiss.

"You won't marry Johnson, will you?" he asked.

"Of course not," she replied. "I never intended to do anything so absurd. There is just one man on earth I'd ever marry, and that is you."

So at last Jasper Briggs got a wife, but it was never clear to him just how it came about. He could never tell for the life of him whether he proposed or whether Rose did, but of one thing he was sure and that was that Rose made it easy for him to say what was necessary, and he loved her all the more for it.

Bank of England Court.
The Bank of England contains what still continues to be a surprise to visitors. After passing through the first quadrangle, which is small and gloomy and paved with flagstones, one proceeds through an archway into a courtyard which for beauty would be difficult to match anywhere. It is practically a garden—peaceful, shady and secluded as any in England—in which is breathed an air of old world poetry.

Venerable trees cast long, cool shadows across the brilliant turf. Through their thick foliage one catches glimpses of the stately Corinthian pillars on the opposite side, lighted with the last lingering rays of the setting sun and forming a background to a row of flower-pots brilliant with geranium and sunflower. In the center is an old stone fountain, throwing up a languid jet of water, which splashes lazily in the basin with a sweet, dreamy sound.

The Human Brain.
Some of the more advanced of the physiologists now claim that the back lobes of the brain are the seat of the highest intellectual faculties, a theory which is in direct opposition to that of the phrenologists and to popular opinion as well, the latter being that a high forehead is a proof of superior intelligence. To the large hind head has been attributed an unusual degree of animalism. Dr. C. Clapham, an anthropologist of high repute throughout Europe, has given arguments in favor of the posterior lobes in a recently published paper which shows that man, of all creatures, has the most highly developed posterior lobes, and that the ablest men and races have them in the highest perfection. Idiots and confirmed lunatics, according to his investigations, have these imperfectly developed or in a very rudimentary state.

Lincoln's Two.
While President Lincoln was in the Fort Monroe about the time of the capture of the fort, he was explaining to a group of visitors the various parts of the fort. He stumbled over the word "pickering" and said: "Pickering is the name of the bird that is called a 'pickering'."

"HE LOVES YOU."

entertained a thought of making Rose his wife he never gave that thought life. He continued on in the even tenor of his way, never so much as hinting at such a thing as matrimony and never addressing her save in the respectful terms of friendship or the cold, formal terms of business. Nevertheless Jasper was in love with the widow. To one person that fact was apparent, and that one person was the widow herself. A woman always knows if a man loves her, if she is with him much, no matter how closely he guards his feelings. Women have a great deal keener perception than men when it comes to affairs of love. Rose read Jasper's heart like an open book, and she did not disapprove of his loving her. Why should she when she loved him? She quite approved of his love and was ready to marry him any day. She waited with becoming modesty for Jasper to speak, but the days ran into weeks and the weeks into months, and he did not venture to utter a word of love. Then she began to grow impatient. It is not the nature of woman to be satisfied with loving and being loved in silence. She wants the lips to speak the fullness of the heart. She deviated a little from her strict ideas of womanly modesty so far as to offer him a morsel of encouragement. She addressed him with unusual tenderness—in tones that breathed of love. She gave him looks that were eloquent with love—linguishing, soulful glances that were capable of melting a heart of stone. She smiled on him. And such smiles! They were ravishing, enchanting, bewitching.

All these things had their effect on Jasper. He observed, and he understood, and his heart bounded, his blood ran riot, and his form trembled. He was next door to heaven, plainly invited to enter, longed to do so, but hadn't the power to move a foot. With all Rose's encouragement he could not advance an inch toward matrimony.
